

From: "John Brougher, NARAL Pro-Choice America" <can@prochoiceamerica.org>
Date: Feb 4, 2015 11:28 AM
Subject: I'm a man. I support abortion rights.
To: <anyone@emailaddress.com>
Cc:

Dear Friend,

As a man, people sometimes ask me why I work to defend abortion rights.

My answer: How could I not?

I believe in equality, freedom, and self-determination for all. And for women, that must include the power to control their own bodies.

But to win the long-term fight to defend women's reproductive rights, we need more men like me speaking out. That's why we've created Men for Choice--to mobilize the support we need among men as well as women.

This year we've set out to recruit and elevate more men for choice than ever before--and you can help jump-start this year's effort by making a donation today. Will you chip in?

Yes. I'll chip in to help support Men for Choice and defend abortion rights.

Polls show that 7 in 10 Americans support Roe v. Wade--a majority that includes not just women but also men.

But it's not enough to have a silent majority. In most political fights, the side that makes the most noise wins.

That's why all us pro-choice men need to speak out just as loudly as pro-choice women do.

That's what Men for Choice is all about. We organize celebrities, elected officials, and regular activists and highlight them in the media and at events all over the country--so politicians know it's not just women's votes they need to worry about.

Will you chip in to help identify and elevate more men for choice in 2015 than ever before?

Yes. I'll make a donation to defend abortion rights.

Thank you for helping to make reproductive freedom real for all women,

John Brougher

Chief Technology Officer, NARAL Pro-Choice America

It is not a coincidence that the pro-choice movement focus on women and never mothers, because 9 out of 10 pregnant women who enter Planned Parenthood clinics leave without their babies*..

The pro-choice side is recruiting men to their cause and telling them that the only "choice" they have is to be pro-choice.

Some "choice," huh?

Only if we reach out to men will they get both sides of the story and choose life.

They are raising money off the idea that they are mobilizing pro-choice men.

The time for us to respond is NOW.

This is a critical moment for the pro-life movement. The pro-choice movement is no longer framing abortion as an exclusively "women's issue."

How will we respond?

How much noise will we make to show that we support men's involvement in our efforts to save the lives of the unborn?

The choice may be hers, but the child is also a father's responsibility.

*92% of pregnant women visiting Planned Parenthood clinics get an abortion. From Pretty Ugly at itsprettyugly.com.